THE ARMS
OF WARWICK SCHOOL

Warwick School was given a Grant of Arms on the 7th September, 1931, under the hands and seals of Sir Gerald Woods Wollaston, Garter King of Arms, Arthur William Steuart, Esq., Clarenceux King of Arms, and Algar Henry Stafford Howard, Esq., Norroy King of Arms. The arms given were as follows :

Gules a Cross Flory in the first quarter, a Fleur-de-lys Or on a chief of the second three Martlets Azure. CREST: On a wreath of the colours, Upon a Portcullis chained Or a Bear erect Argent Muzzled Gules supporting a Ragged Staff also Argent. MOTTO : (As is customary this is not mentioned in the blazon or heraldic description in the Grant but is included in the illustration of the arms) ALTIORA PETO (I aim at higher things).

The coat of arms may be interpreted as follows : On a red shield a golden cross with each limb ending in a fleur-de-lys and a golden fleur-de-lys in the top left hand corner ; on the upper part of the shield, also of gold, three blue martlets (heraldic swallows, depicted without feet because of a mediaeval belief that they could not perch on the ground). The wreath represents the twisted band of material which helped to hold the crest in place upon the helmet and, at the same time, held the mantling or cloth which prevented the helmet being overheated by the rays of the sun. It consists of "the colours", that is, of the two principal colours of the shield, gold and red.

The significance of the shield and crest are as follows. The cross flory is taken from the shield ascribed to Edward the Confessor, as are the three martlets. The fleur-de-lys is from the shield of Henry VIII, which combined the fleur-de-lys of France with the lions of England. The Bear and Ragged Staff is the crest of the Warwick family, and Lady Warwick graciously gave her consent to its use. The Tudor portcullis was allowed as part of the crest and the use of the motto confirmed.
