Making Good Men Better...

Freemasons of Antrim in the community...

Lodges across the province regularly give to their own charitable causes within their local communities.

There are plenty of social gatherings to enjoy

We've made life long friends along the way...

We support and serve our communities...

Why become a Freemason?

Freemasonry is the oldest fraternal organisation in the world, with a focus on helping our fellow mankind.

Our members have many reasons for joining. Some have followed in the footsteps of family members or have been searching for friendship and purpose. Others have been seeking to help and some have been intrigued by this age-old organisation. But what remains and why they stay members is that this organisation offers a sense of support and fraternity unrivalled elsewhere in society. It is absolutely testament to the longevity of this special brotherhood of men.

How to become a Freemason...

Many people assume that to become a Freemason, one must be invited to join. This is not the case. In fact, while members might encourage their friends to join, they do not typically recruit or invite candidates for membership.

A person who is interested in joining is encouraged to simply ask a member. Even if you don't know a member and wish to join, use the "Interested in joining?" link below and a member of the Provincial Grand Lodge will be happy to help and put you in touch with a suitable lodge in your area.

We are home to 145 Lodges in Northern Ireland, and part of the Grand Lodge of Ireland.

The Provincial Grand Lodge of Antrim has over 4,000 members and this is growing each week.

We span the Greater Belfast area across Ballymena and Antrim, and along the beautiful Causeway Coast from Ballycastle to Portrush.
